

Provision for pupils with particular religious, dietary, language or cultural needs

As stated in our Equal Opportunities policy, Bosworth College recognises and celebrates the cultural diversity of its student body. Many of our students come from overseas; we often have on average close to 40 nationalities represented each year. As such we expect students and staff to respect each other's cultures. With this in mind we deal respectfully and carefully with cultural requests and needs, while also being mindful of the need to maintain a cohesive college community. We hold an annual culture day to expose students to different foods and traditional costumes.

While we are a secular college, we respectfully and sympathetically adapt to the cultural and religious needs of our students. For example, we allow students to take time off to observe religious festivals such as Eid and national celebrations such as Chinese New Year. We also encourage students to attend their traditional religious organisations and we can provide links to various religious organisations. A prayer room is provided for students to use at Bosworth Hall.

Regarding dietary needs, the college listens to and adapts our menu to students' requests. These requests are collected from the student survey and via the Student Council. All meals served in the college restaurant have a vegetarian option. Some of the meat that is purchased by the college is Halal. More than one choice of meat or fish is always offered at lunch and at meal times.

Students would naturally prefer to speak their native language within their social group. However, the college expects all students to speak English in the academic buildings during teaching hours. We feel this is one way to help students to improve their spoken and written English. Students are, however, free to speak their native language out of these buildings and at other times. Older students assist in staff conversations with students whose English is poor; to help and support students who have difficulty in expressing themselves in English. The college also employs staff who are fluent in the following languages: Mandarin, Cantonese, Russian, Korean, Spanish, German, French, Italian, Romanian, Lithuanian and Polish. These staff can be called upon to help translate as needed, including offering support on welfare matters. For example, we use senior students and staff to translate non-confidential documents that have been sent to families overseas.
